Tomorrow, May 17th, at the luxurious Fairmont Hotel Vancouver, Vancouver-based mining company Skye Resources will hold its annual and special general meeting of shareholders at 10am.

The established agenda for the meeting is 'business as usual', despite the serious and ongoing human, land and indigenous rights violations linked to Skye's Fenix project in eastern Guatemala and despite the historical repression that has accompanied nickel mining in the impoverished Maya Q'eqchi' region.

WATCH A 9-MINUTE VIDEO: on the recent violent evictions of indigenous communities at the behest of Skye, read about Canadian Ambassador Kenneth Cook's false allegations about the video and evictions, and listen to CBC interviews with ARSN activist Kathryn Anderson, video creator Steven Schnoor and Skye CEO Ian Austin: <http://www.rightsaction.org/video/elestor/>

A small but dynamic group is organizing activities the week of May 17th to raise public awareness about Skye Resources, evictions & repression, Canada Pension Plan (CPP) investment in the destructive mining industry, and the pro-mining Canadian governmental policy position.

A public event will be held in Vancouver, along with an open call for letters and phone calls from across North America to Skye Resources raising the concerns of indigenous communities in Guatemala and North American citizens.
