Assessing the “Performance” of Goldcorp in Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico ...

PEOPLE’S INTERNATIONAL HEALTH TRIBUNAL

<http://healthtribunal.org/>

July 14-15, 2012

In 2011, Goldcorp CEO Chuck Jeannes received US$11.4 million for his work for Goldcorp; much of this was based on “performance” criteria. On July 14-15, an International Health Tribunal will take place in San Miguel Ixtahuacan, Guatemala, in the shadow of Goldcorp’s “Marlin” mine. People from Guatemala, Honduras and Mexico will give testimony as to the health harms and other human rights violations they have suffered due to the operations of Goldcorp mines in their regions.

Assuredly the health harms and other human rights violations Goldcorp is causing are not considered when assessing the CEO’s “performance”.

EXECUTIVE COMPENSATION: SOME EARLY TOP EARNERS

By Fiona Anderson, Vancouver Sun blog network, April 13, 2012

<http://blogs.vancouversun.com/2012/04/13/executive-compensation-some-early-top-earners/#print>

[...] In 2011, Goldcorp’s CEO Chuck Jeannes’ total compensation was $11.4 million (all figures for Jeannes in US dollars), up from $9.7 million in 2010. Jeannes’ base salary was only $1,415,540 and, according to the company’s management information circular which is prepared for the company’s annual general meeting, the base salary is expected to make up only about 14 per cent of his overall pay, the bulk of which will be in shares. He also received a bonus of $1,633,833 as well as pension value and other compensation. In 2011, Jeannes received 55,000 restricted share units (RSUs) worth about $2.7 million, 120,000 share options valued at $1.7 million and 623,000 performance share units (PSUs), worth $3.3 million. OVERVIEW

On July 14th and 15th, 2012, affected community members, scientists, academics, spiritual leaders, journalists and human rights advocates will come together to carry out an ethical, political and community-driven tribunal. This mechanism was developed to address the health and social impact of Canadian mining company Goldcorp, Inc. with specific attention to three cases:

- The Marlin Mine operating in San Miguel Ixtahuacán, Guatemala
- The San Martín Mine until recently operating in Valle de Siria, Honduras
- The Los Filos Mine operating in Carrizalillo, Mexico

OUR JUDGES

Our jury members are distinguished individuals with a diversity of backgrounds/ experiences, including activists, scholars, religious leaders, journalists, and medical professionals from the United States, El Salvador, Chile, Guatemala, and Mexico.

AREA OF FOCUS

The tribunal is focused on analyzing the behaviour and impact of the Marlin mine in Guatemala, the Los Filos mine in Mexico and the San Martín Mine in Honduras. The international jury will deliberate on the following questions:

1. How has Goldcorp affected health and wellbeing of the communities in question?
2. Does Goldcorp have the social license to operate in these particular communities?
3. And further, to consider the role/responsibility of the company and state-governments, in particular:
 - a. What has been the response of the government and the company to the issue presented?
 - b. What role have the local, municipal and federal Guatemalan authorities and the Canadian government played in relation to the company?
 - c. What are the responsibilities of these institutions?
